

7 Benefits of On-Premise Faxing

Faxination's on-premise faxing system provides organizations with a complete solution for managing and sending their documents quickly and securely.

With on-premise faxing, it is easier than ever for businesses to transfer business critical data and continue operations without a hitch. Read our infographic to dive into the benefits on-premise faxing provides.

SECURITY AND FRAUD PREVENTION

On-premise technology is among the most reliable and secure methods of business data transmission. It eliminates the risk of documents being intercepted or fraudulently altered in transit, as all data is stored within the organization's own servers.

ENFORCEABLE BY LAW

On-premise faxing provides sent and received confirmations and renders all documents legally. This adds an extra layer of security to ensure that all legal documents such as contracts and agreements remain valid.

EFFICIENT WORKFLOWS

On-premise faxing helps to streamline processes, improve collaboration and reduce paperwork associated with manual filing systems. It also increases communication between departments and across companies.

MULTIPLE RECIPIENTS

This type of faxing allows users to send multiple messages simultaneously to multiple recipients using a single transmission. Being able to function like this saves both time and resources when sending out large batches of documents.

ON-SITE OR VIRTUAL LOCATION

On-premise faxing is located at the customer's office space by having a physical server. Virtual faxing relieves your company of needing extra space for a server. Both options provide your team with the control it needs.

REPORTING AND BILLING

With Faxination on-premise, all organizations can create and review reports per user/number and bill out to different departments or divisions within their business if needed. This helps gain better visibility over their usage costs and understand how their system is being used.
